ANOTHER PROPERTY.

- James II, King of Scotland. His Royal Sign Manual to the Original State Paper, relieving a debt of 500 marks due to the Crown for the lands of Balbartanis "with the mill lying within the sherifidom of Fyfe."
 - A full transcript accompanies the State Paper. An excessively rare autograph.
- 27 JAMES III OF SCOTLAND. His Royal Sign Manual (twice) to a highly important State Paper covering 3 p. folio and entitled

"Instructions to be given to his Ambassador to the King to be shown to the Duke of Burgundy his dearest Cousin and Confederate."

(circa 1471–72)

Relative to the renewal of old Confederations and Appointments and to conclude upon a certain article anew touching the sending of certain men-of-war at the expense of the party requiring them. Touches upon the Duke's acceptation in his Covenant of the King of England . . has left the acceptance of the King of Denmark his father-in-law from the Alliance.

If the Alliance is acceptable under the new form will he receive it and deliver it under his Great Seal, etc., etc.

The third page deals entirely with the "matter of Gueldres," to which he claims possession. (This page is specially signed by the King.)

-  The Royal Sign Manual of James III of Scotland is, of course, of the greatest rarity, but to find two signatures on one document is surely unique.
- Gueldres came to Scotland by the marriage of James III and Mary of Gueldres.
- A full transcript accompanies this extremely interesting and important State Paper

31A BOTHWELL (Adam) Bishop of Orkney. Married Mary Queen of Scots and Lord Darnley

BOTHWELL (Francis). Nephew of the Bishop ALEXANDER (James)

This extremely important Series of letters is of peculiar interest from the light it throws upon the affairs of Scotland at the time, and on the life of Adam Bothwell, whose own career was so intimately connected with Queen Mary's. He had been put in possession of the Temporalities of the See of Orkney, vacant by the death of Bishop Robert Reid on October 11th 1559, arriving there in the course of the month. Trouble and strife awaited him, stirred up by his cousin Sir John Bellenden, the Justice Clerk, whose two sisters had married two Sinclairs, Robert and Henry. Unable to cope with these and other similar disturbances, the Bishop left the Orkneys and went to France in the spring 1561 to lay his complaints before Queen Mary, and he returned to Scotland in her train. In May 1567 he made himself conspicuous as the only person to be found who would perform the marriage ceremony between Mary and James Hepburn, Earl of Bothwell.

£ 21 apsley

On July 20th, a few days after Mary's abdication, the Bishop crowned and anointed her infant son James as King of Scotland, and soon afterwards, perhaps through the influence and pressure of his relations, became the declared enemy of the Earl of Bothwell, and later of Mary.

The Bishop, who had received many favours from the Queen, turned against her and persecuted her with the utmost virulence. At the Conference held at York and Westminster he was amongst the foremost and most violent of her accusers.

He had also been foremost in attempting to secure Mary's last husband, and had joined the armament which sailed to the Orkneys in pursuit of him. He was with Kirkaldy of Grange aboard the Unicorn when that ship was wrecked by striking a rock during the pursuit, and though weighted by armour succeeded in saving himself

32 Bothwell (Adam), Bishop of Orkney, L. s., 1½ p. folio, very closely written, February 1st, 1561

Mentions Lord James (the Regent Murray) and refers to the marriage of Sir John Bellenden's two Sisters with the two Sinclairs and the attempt to waylay and kill him by the Sinclairs. Mentions the taking of his house and other wrongs done the Bishop by the Sinclairs. Cries to the Sheriff for justice "in the Queen's (Mary Stuart) name."

A full transcript accompanies this exceedingly interesting letter.

33 BOTHWELL (Adam), Bishop of Orkney, L. s. with autograph superscription, 2 p. folio. Monsbellus in Orkney, March 25th, 1561

Refers to the Lord James (the Regent Murray, who was Regent during the absence of Mary, Queen of Scots, in France), etc.

A full transcript accompanies the letter

34 Alexander (James), A. L. s., I full p. folio, Kirkwall, April 20th, 1561

Relative to the departure of his "Lord my master (the Bishop of Orkney) your brother" to pass into France to visit the "Queen's grace our Mistress."

The Queen (Mary Stuart) will remedy his Lord's (the Bishop's) grievances.

A full transcript accompanies this fine letter

35 BOTHWELL (Francis), A. L. s., 2 pp. folio, to his aunt, Jane Bothwell, Kirkwall, April 25th, 1561

Her brother (the Bishop of Orkney) intends to go to France (on the Queen's service). Charges her, because of her brother's kindness, to see that her husband attends to the business which Thomas Tullock of Lewis moved against his Lordship and which will recur upon May the 25th next, "until he be come home from the Queen's (Mary Stuart) graces service."

A full transcript accompanies this letter

36 BOTHWELL (Francis), A. L. s., I full p. folio, Kirkwall, August 28th (1560). To his aunt Jane Bothwell

"I have heard of the Queen's grace coming home." Relative to the return of Mary, Queen of Scots, from France, after the death of her husband, the boy King, Francis 11.

A full transcript accompanies the letter

37 Bothwell (Adam), Bishop of Orkney, D. s. "Adame Bischope off Orknay, Conedatair off Halyrudhous." His Original Grant of property in the lands of Merchiston. I p. folio, December 24th, 1571

This document sets out that Adam Bothwell, Bishop of Orkney, and Commendator of Holyrood, in consideration of large sums received has granted the tithes of Merchiston for the space of thirty-eight years, on payment of fourteen pounds, four shillings

Scots (something less than one pound stirling).

In 1567 the Bishop of Orkney, who, as Buchanan writes, "preferred court favour to truth," had performed the marriage ceremony between Mary and Bothwell, when no other minister would consent to do so. He had in consequence been suspended from the Ministry, but was restored in August 1568. In 1570 he exchanged all the temporalities of his Bishoprick, which he had rarely visited, with Robert Stewart, a natural son of James V, half-brother of Queen Mary and afterwards Earl of Orkney, for the Abbacy of Holyrood, granted to the said Robert Stewart when an infant.

43 BOTHWELL (John), Abbot of Holyrood. Autograph Signature and subscription to a copy of the Deed of Adam Bothwell his father, Bishop of Orkney, as Commendator of Holyrood Abbey, relative to the tithe sheaves of Merchiston. I p. folio, December 24, 1571

John was the son of the Bishop of Orkney, Adam Bothwell, and was created Lord of Holyrood House in 1607.

44 ALEXANDER (James), A. L. s., I full p. folio, Kirkwall, April 22nd, circa 1561. To the Lady of Merchiston (Adam Bothwell's daughter, Jane). Relative to the heavy troubles his Lordship (the Bishop) has had. Refers to the insurrection of the Sinclairs and to the fact that the Lord Bishop of Orkney (Adam Bothwell), who has been seriously ill, has made his will and appointed her husband his executor, etc.

Accompanied by a full transcript of the letter

45 Foulis (James), Clerk of the Rolls to Mary, Queen of Scots.
D. s., I p. folio, Edinburgh, May 9th, 1547

Relative to the summons issued against Patrick, Bishop of Murray, Master Henry Lander and the heirs of Andrew, Bishop of Murray, for the wrongful retaining of a "great mansion" and appurtenances lying in Edinburgh, etc

The conclusion is in Latin. Translated it reads: "Extract from the Book of Acts be me master James Foulis of Colintown, Clerk of the Rolls of the registry of the Supreme Council of MY LADY THE QUEEN under my signet and subscription of my hand."

IMPORTANT, mentioning the child Queen of Scots, Mary Stuart.

A full transcript accompanies this document.

- * * Froude, mentioning this book in his Life of Carlyle, states that the latter said of the Imitation that no other book except the Bible had been so universally loved by Christians of all tongues and sects
- 79 \ CARLYLE (Thomas), 2 pp. of auto. MSS., 1 p. folio and 1 p. 5. 8vo., from his "Life of Frederick the Great"
 - 80 \ CARLYLE (Thomas), A. L. s., I p. 4to., Craigenputtock, Monday, October 6th, 1828, to his Mother (damaged), giving news of himself and the Doctor (? his brother, J. A. Carlyle)

The London Reviewers have anxiously agreed to pay me at the highest rate, if I will continue to write for them. I go down to Dumfries to draw on them for 50%.

. . . The Doctor is at Vienna, somewhat farther from home than Munich, and living in his own hired house! He talks about Lakes and villages and all other trash, but not a word of what he is doing stumbling and clooting in these foreign places. Poor Doctor, and foolish Doctor etc.

 The Directions begin as follows:

The scriptures are a book, which require a yeare's time to read deliberately; and the common preaching is to dilate every versicle or period thereof into above 1,000 discourses, each of an hour long.

Now because it doth not seem to stand with the justice and goodnesse of Almighty God, to put the eternal weal and woe of children, idiots, Americans, slaves and illiterate persons upon so vast a worke, I venture to advise you in the first place to secure the few following points etc.

- 98 Percy (Thomas),1729–1811, Bishop of Dromore, A. L. s., 3 pp. 4to., October 5th, 1803, to Edward Malone, an interesting letter, showing the writer's kindness to Goldsmith's family

- Liszt (F.), Composer, A. L. s., 2 pp. 8vo. (no date) (in French), mentioning Schumann and Wagner

- SHELLEY (P. B.) A. L. s., 1\frac{1}{3} pp. folio, Pisa, July 27th, 1820, to John Keats, a most important letter, torn at the seal and slightly defective, partly laid down, with portraits of Keats and Shelley
 -  Speaks of Keats' consumption: "This consumption is a disease particularly fond of people who write such good verses as you have done, and with the assistance of an £262 Quarital English winter it can often indulge its selection. I do not think that young and amiable poets are at all bound to gratify its taste; they have entered into no bond with the Muses to that effect," etc.

He then invites Keats to come and stay with them in Italy, and goes on to speak of his poetry:

I have lately read your "Endymion" again, and ever with a new sense of the treasures of poetry it contains, though treasures poured forth with indistinct profusion. This, people in general will not endure, and that is the cause of the comparatively few copies which have been sold. I feel persuaded that you are capable of the greatest things, so you but will. I always tell Ollier to send you copies of my books. "Prometheus Unbound" I imagine you will receive nearly at the same time with this letter. "The Cenci" I hope you have already received—it was studiously composed in a different style.

In poetry I have sought to avoid system and mannerism; I wish those who excel me in genius would pursue the same plan, etc.

The letter ends with an expression of the writer's anxiety for Keats' welfare.

Keats' reply, written in the following month, contains the famous advice to "be more of an artist, and load every rift of your subject with ore"

This letter was given by Leigh Hunt to G. H. Lewes, and by him to Mrs. Elma Stuart, and is accompanied by a letter to her from Lewes, sent with it

- 107 ALBUM, containing many interesting and valuable A. L. s. with signatures, portraits, etc., including quotation from Goethe, five lines, with translation; both in the handwriting of G. H. Beuve, D. G. Rossetti, Robert Browning, A. L. s., 1½ pp., to G. H. Lewes, introducing Mr. Conway, Leigh Hunt, Douglas Jerrold, Lord Lytton, Thomas Carlyle, 3 pp. 8vo, January 16th, 1861, to G. H. Lewes; Charles Dickens, 3½ pp. 8vo, November 20th, 1850, to the same, signed with initials only, last page cut, an important letter with regard to the appearance of a novel by "George Eliot" in All the Year Round, and asking him to write a paper on "Adam Bede, junior," " protesting most strongly and indignantly in the interests of literature against that most shameful and abominable proceeding," all the letters are laid down
- IOS SEYMOUR (Robert). THE LIFE OF ROBERT SEYMOUR, CARICATURIST [1800 (?)—1836], by R. D. Morewood, a Manuscript on about 340 4to. sheets (unpublished), together with several MS. extracts from other works relating to him; 3 A. L. s. (2 torn and frayed) from Robert Seymour to Jane Holmes, who afterwards became his wife; 12 A. L. s. from Mrs. Seymour to her son Robert; 27 A. L. s. from Robert Seymour, son of the Artist, to Mr. Morewood, some of which contain interesting information relating to his father; an A. L. s. (2 pp.) from Thos. M'Lean to Miss Seymour, dated July 13th, 1869, on the occasion of the death of her mother; 43 A. L. varying in date from 1799 to 1840 from various members of the Seymour family; particulars of Robert Seymour the Younger's death, some miscellaneous papers, a pocket book containing a miniature on ivory (broken and a part missing), and a small sketch book containing a few rough drawings presumably by Robert Seymour; 6 coloured plates; The March of Intellect, by Robert Seymour, boards, M'Lean, 1829; New Comic Almanack for 1836, with 13 comic engravings by R. Seymour, wrappers (frayed); Maxims and Hints for an Angler, plates by R. Seymour, original cloth (frayed), 1833; 6 small books (some defective), with illustrations by R. Seymour, and a miscellaneous collection of etchings and engravings (some mounted); a Miniature of a Lady by Seymour, the whole enclosed in a Deed Box

- DE QUINCEY (THOMAS), "The Opium Eater," autograph MS. about 99 pp. 4to., being a Journal and Notebook, kept during the year 1803, with A Catalogue of the Books of Thomas Quincey in another hand, a few leaves damaged, half-bound
 -  A most remarkable manuscript, written at Everton, near Liverpool, at a very interesting period of De Quincey's strange career, when he was only 18 years of age, and shortly after he had run away from school. It contains auto. drafts signed of letters to his mother, two different drafts of his first letter to Wordsworth soliciting his correspondence, a diary of his daily life, reading and conversations, lists of books he proposed to write, criticisms of literature, etc. One passage discusses humour in poetry; another describes the visit of a press-gang; elsewhere he refers to characters in Shakespeare's plays, expresses admiration of Fox, surmises that Coleridge is a compound of Ancient Mariner and Bath concert-room traveller with bushy hair, and alludes with pride to England's share in the war against Napoleon
- Arminius (Jacobus), Doc. s., i p. sm. 8vo., Certificate for a student Petrus Boelen, Hagiensi, signed by Barnsdorp the Younger, Nic. van Teyst Jacobus Arminius and Coddæus

The Property of the late GEORGE COWARD, Esq., of Carlisle, who wrote under the name of "Sidney Gilpin."

SOLD BY ORDER OF HIS EXECUTOR.

- 128 Graves (John Woodcock), author of "D'ye Ken John Peel," various documents relating to the Song, letters, etc., as follows:—
 - 1. A. D. s. (in Hobart Town, Tasmania), 1 p. 8vo., May 23rd, 1865, stating that he wrote the Song about 1828, and conferring the copyright in it on George Coward, stationer, of Carlisle (who wrote under the nom-de-plume of Sidney Gilpin); and portion of an A. L. s. on the back
 - 2. A. D. s., I p. folio, May 24th, 1866, furnishing Geo. Coward with a version of the Song as originally written in dialect, laid down. The document commences

I wrote the following Ballad when residing at Caldbeck, Cumberland, in 1828–9, and, as I now remember, in the provincial language of that place, never supposing then it would be heard further, etc.

This version was written out for the first authorised publication of the Song in "Songs and Ballads of Cumberland," compiled and edited by "Sidney Gilpin"

3. MS. of the Song, 2 pp. 8vo., written out by G. Coward, with Graves' autograph, notes and corrections, laid down

4. Revised MS. of the Song, 2 pp. 8vo., written out by G. Coward, with Graves' autograph notes and corrections; with autograph account by the latter on the back of the hounds—Ruby and Ranter and Royal—commemorated in the Song, and a thrilling description of Peel himself:

O! have I not seen him with his bald head and hat on high holloing them and cracking his whip at skeleton devils all mired with their tails slashing arched over their backs, and tearing and bellowing the very earth up or snatching the game from one another, well knowing Reynard was dragging his brush not far before them and so they each jealously looking for a grab. Here you might have seen Peel's whole soul on fire while his spirit was fit to burst from his cheeks and jugular etc.

[See FRONTISPIECE]

5. A. D. s. and sealed, $\frac{3}{4}$ p. folio, August 11th; 1870, appointing George Coward his attorney to deal with the Song

6. Original music of the Song; this is the air to which it was originally sung, and was used by William Metcalfe, the Carlisle Cathedral singer, as the basis for his setting of the Song.

7. 5 A. L. s., 24 pp. 8vo., 1865-70, written from Tasmania to Geo. Coward

 The letters tell of hunting in Tasmania, one states the writer's intention of getting lithographs made of "a drawing of poor Peel as I recollect him 40 years ago," another speaks modestly of his own talents

 $\lq\lq$ I declare that I never thought myself more than a hedgerow rhymer till I was called out as the author of John Peel $\lq\lq$

Elsewhere he transcribes a "Great-grandfather's cradle song, by the author of John Peel," and tells of stirring events in New Zealand

8. 4 autograph sets of verses. It patters and rains; Done like a dinner; This day that I; Evening call: in all about $5\frac{1}{2}$ pp. 4to. and folio (14)

 The history of these manuscripts is as follows: In 1833 Graves went out to Tasmania, and was still there when, in 1863–4, George Coward began to accumulate material for "Songs and Ballads of Cumberland," and wrote to him asking for particulars of the history of the Song and of his own life; for any information he could give about John Peel; and for a copy of the Song. In reply Graves sent the documents Nos. 1 and 2. George Coward saw the value of the Song from a national point of view, and fearing that if published in dialect it would not be so popular as if anglicised somewhat he wrote out document No. 3, sent it to Graves, and got it back with the latter's notes. On further consideration Geo. Coward made a revised copy (No. 4) which he submitted to Graves, and it was this version that was printed in "Songs and Ballads of Cumberland," 1866

These manuscripts are of peculiar interest at the present time, owing to the letters on the history of "D'ye ken John Peel" which appeared in the Daily Mail for March 1, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 11 and 13, 1919. They must always be of importance, as containing both the original and the final versions of the most famous hunting song in the English language

Madison (James), President U.S.A. A. L. s., Washington, May 22nd, 1807, to G. Joy, Esq., 2\frac{3}{4} pp. 4to. A most important and forcibly expressed protest against the British naval practice of the Impressment of American citizens. "That an officer from a foreign ship should pronounce any person he pleased, covered by the American flag on the high seas, to be not an American citizen, but a British subject, and carry his interested decision on the most important of all questions to a freeman into execution on the spot, is so anomalous in principle, so grievous in practice, and so abominable in abuse, that the pretension must finally yield to sober discussion and friendly expostulation," etc.

The Property of A GENTLEMAN.

A. L. s. (one in duplicate), covering in all 20 pp. folio and upwards of 54 pp. 4To. and written between August 6th, 1786, and November 9th, 1794, to Arthur Young, the eminent writer on Agriculture; bound up with an A. L. s., 3½ pp. 4to., January 6th, 1786, from Young to Washington, a plan of Mount Vernon, and portraits of Washington and Young, from Arthur Young's library, sold at Wellington St., December 1st, 1896, dark blue morocco, panel sides, inside dentelles, marbled end papers

* The letter from Arthur Young, which opens the correspondence was occasioned by an application on behalf of Washington to assist in procuring a "bailiff skilled in English husbandry," and contains some magniloquent eulogies of the great Virginian:

. . . The spectacle of a great commander retiring in the manner you have done from the head of a victorious army to the amusements of agriculture calls all the feelings of my bosom into play, etc.

Sending the first four volumes of the Annals of Agriculture, he says:

Will you do me the honour of accepting them as a very small mark of my veneration for the character of a man whose private virtues rendered a cause successful and illustrious, which I have been solicitous as an Englishman to condemn, etc.—

while, speaking as a brother farmer, he offers to send out men, cattle, tools, or seeds, and gives a condescending approval to Washington's expression concerning manure.

Washington's first letter is equally ceremonious:

I thank you (he says) for the favour of opening a correspondence the advantages of which will be so much in my favour. Agriculture has ever been among the most favoured of my amusements, though I never possessed much skill in the art, and nine years' dereliction has added nothing to a knowledge which is only to be perfected by practice—etc.

Washington promptly accepted Young's offer of assistance, and sent detailed orders for ploughs, seeds, and other requisites; acknowledging these on December 4th, 1788,

he writes:

The more I am acquainted with agricultural affairs the better I am pleased with them. Insomuch that I can nowhere find so great satisfaction, as in those innocent and useful pursuits. In indulging these feelings I am led to reflect how much more delightful to an undebauched mind is the task of making improvements on the earth than all the vainglory which can be acquired from ravaging it by the most uninterrupted career of conquests. The design of this observation is only to show how much as a member of human society I feel myself obliged by your labours to render respectable and advantageous an employment which is more congenial to the natural disposition of mankind than any other—etc.

Speaking of wages, Washington says on June 18th, 1792.

That labour in this country is higher than it is in England I can readily conceive. The ease with which a man can obtain land, in fee, beyond the mountains—to which most of that class of people repair—may be assigned as the primary cause of it. But high wages is not the worst evil attending the hire of white men in this country, for being accustomed to better fare than I believe the labourers of almost any other country, adds considerably to the expense of employing them—etc.

The longest of the letters is that dated December 12th, 1793, which gives an account of Washington's estate, Mount Vernon:

No estate in United America is more pleasantly situated than this—It lyes in a high, dry and healthy country, 300 miles by water from the Sea—and . . . on one of the finest Rivers in the world. Its margin is washed by more than ten miles of tide water. . . It is situated in a latitude between the extremes of heat and cold, and is the same distance by land and water, with good roads and the best navigation from the Federal City, Alexandria and Georgetown. . . . The federal city in the year 1800 will become the seat of the general Government of the United States. It is increasing fast in buildings and rising into consequence; and will, I have no doubt, from the advantages given to it by nature and its proximity to a rich interior country and the western territory, become the emporium of the United States.

183 LOYALISTS. Draft by Smith of an Instrument to establish a Board of Directors to the Associated Loyalists (1780) 11 pp. folio. Notes, by Smith, on consideration of the papers offered by Governor Franklin (1780), 4 pp. folio endorsed "Notes on the Commission and Instructions offered to the General [i.e. Sir Henry Clinton] by the Directors of the Associating Loyalists" Copy of a Parole to be taken by General Arnold from the Inhabitants, I p. folio, with fly-leaf

The first piece is endorsed "A consultation on this with Sir Henry [Clinton] November 21st, 1780. A copy signed and sealed, given by Captain Smith the General Secretary to Governor Franklin, Wednesday, November 22nd." document is in the form of a Circular letter to be sent under the hand and seal of Sir Henry Clinton, to William Franklin, Esq. Governor of New Jersey, Josiah Martin, Governor of North Carolina, Timothy Ruggles, Daniel Coxe, George Duncan Ludlow, Edward Lutwycke, George Rome, and George Leonard, Esquires. After expressing the King's approval of the Memorial of George Leonard as a ground for forming a plan by which His Majesty's faithful subjects in America may annoy the sea coasts of the revolted Colonies, and distress their trade, and co-operate generally with the regular Land Forces, he appoints the abovementioned gentlemen as a Board of Directors for carrying out the aims and objects aforesaid

184 MARYLAND. A. L. (1690?), 13 pp. folio, from someone in Maryland, presumably to Jacob Leisler, Lt.-Gov. of New York endorsed (apparently in Leisler's autograph) "Marilands grevances wey the have taken op armes"

A most important and interesting historical letter commencing
"Sr. In answer to yors desireing an accot of the Protestants of their first appearinge and still soe continueinge in Armes in Maryland, take this brief butt true and unbyassed accot vizt." The letter itself is quite complete, but if there was any signature it was probably on a missing covering sheet with the address. The grievances are tabulated under 22 heads and numerous persons are mentioned by name

letters are called for as enclosures, II pp. folio, in Smith's hand. Two copies of the Charter of Incorporation of the Trustees of the College of New Jersey, 1748, 10 pp., probably intended for use in drafting the Charter for the College of New York, etc. (18)

- Incorporation of the Trustees of the College of New Jersey, 1748, 9 pp. folio. A. L. s. (draft) September 13th, 1754, from William Smith to the Rev. C. Burr (President of the College) suggesting that he should take steps to get the College of New Jersey represented in the General Assembly in the same way as it was proposed the College of New York should be represented, as provided for in the Charter he (Smith) was now now engaged in drafting, I p. folio, A. L. s. Newark, September 19th, 1754. President Burr's reply, I p. folio, with address on fly-leaf. A. L. s. (draft), September 23rd, 1754, Smith to Burr on the same subject, 2 pp. folio
- New York Province. Contemporary copies of official correspondence between David Jones, Speaker of the General Assembly, and Robert Charles, the Colony Agent in London, from the time of his appointment in April 1748 down to October 1760. A most important series on about 150 leaves foolscap folio, containing about 100 Letters, together with numerous enclosures of documents, such as Reports, Memorials, and Petitions to the King, Minutes and Orders in Council, etc., etc., all relating to the affairs of the Colony
 -  From 1748 to March 1753 the correspondence on 73 leaves is copied in continuous form like an entry book, but on separate leaves tied together in the top left corner in legal fashion. At the end a few leaves have evidently been torn away and lost, leaving a hiatus from March 1753 to August 1754. The letters from August 1754 to October 1760 are on 80 separate leaves, and some, from their appearance, may possibly be duplicate originals
- Original printed summons from the Committee of the Congress of New York (with the blanks filled up in the name of William Smith), summoning him to appear at the City Hall, New York, on July 6th, 1776, "to show cause (if any you have) why you should be considered as a friend to the American cause." Addressed "To the Honourable William Smith at his seat at Haverstraw, and signed by Leonard Gansevoort, Phil. Livingston, Lewis Graham, Gouv^r Morris, Thomas Tredwell, and Thomas Randall," I p. folio, endorsed in Smith's hand "The summons of the Committee of the New York Congress, June 27th, 1776. Recorded by one Duyckman, at Haverstraw, Monday morning, July 1st, 1776, in the presence of Colonel Hay and my brother Thomas." Draft A. L. s. from Smith, July 4th, 1776, to the Committee of Congress in answer to their summons, stating that as the Committee had adjourned from New York by reason of the arrival of the British Fleet, he endeavours" by letter to give you the satisfaction you require concerning my conduct during the present troubles. . . . I will attend your call when I know where you meet, if a verbal elucidation of my sentiments will be more agreeable to you than these written Declarations and assurances." A. L. s. Fair copy of the same

- AMERICAN REVOLUTION. Smith as an avowed Loyalist. Original Summons signed Robert Benson, Secretary, June 3rd, 1777, requiring William Smith and (John) Petterson, Esquires, now residing in the Manor Livingston to forthwith attend the Council of Safety at Kingston, Ip. folio, addressed on the back, "For Wm. Smith, Esq.," and endorsed by him "3 June 1777, Summons to Council of Safety." Memorandum in Smith's hand of the Proceedings before the Council of Safety, containing a copy of the above summons, the question put to him "Whether he considered himself a subject of the Independent States of America" and his answer" that he does not consider himself discharged from his oath of fidelity to the Crown of Great Britain," and a copy of the parole exacted from him to be a prisoner in the Manor of Livingstone. Certified copy of "a parole taken of William Smith, Esq., by the Council of Safety of the State of New York, June 7th, 1777, John McKessom, Secretary " (framed), probably the original counterpart given to Smith. Draft A. L., initialled, from Smith, Manor of Livingstone, October 28th, 1777, to General George Clinton, Governor of the State of New York, complaining of outrages committed on the property of himself and friends, 3 pp. 4to.
